JOS. B. JOHNSTON HAS CONCLUDED THIRTEENTH YEAR AS HEAD OF PRESBYTERIAN ORPHANS' HOME

Many Changes Have Taken Place Under Regime of Mr. Johnston.—Facts Given

July 1st marked an anniversary at the Presbyterian Orphans' Home. There was no to-do about it, no fireworks, and no celebration of any kind. It was just another day in the life of Jos. B. Johnston, superintendent of the Orphanage, who on that day began his fourteenth year as head of the institution, having rounded out 13 years the day before. He came to his office as usual, reviewed pending applications, refused some and accepted others after a careful consideration of the merits of the cases, answered his mail, and went about his other manifold duties in connection with his office of superintendent.

It is rather interesting to delve into the history of the Orphanage at the time that this tall and lanky (lanky back in 1922) man came to Barium. In the intervening 13 years there has been a transformation in the institution, value of property has been increased, numerous buildings constructed, a systematic health program inaugurated, the Orphanage capacity has been enlarged and many other things have happened that vitally concern the institution.

In the almost 44 years that the Presbyterian Orphans' Home has been located at Barium Springs a total of 1,775 children have passed through the portals of the institution, and it is very striking that 1,009 of these boys and girls have been here during Mr. Johnston's tenure of office. This doesn't mean that this many have come and gone in those 13 years, for there were 232 children at Barium on July 1, 1922, and there were 292 at the Orphanage on July 1, 1935. Those enrolled at the time of his advent here and those now at Barium are included in that 1,009.

However, this leaves only 766 children with which he had no contact while they were enrolled

SUNDAY SCHOOLS SHOW SPURT IN JUNE GIVING

Reports for First Quarter Disclose Increase Over Similar Period of 1934

The giving of the Sunday Schools of the Synod started off slowly in April, but receipts from this source for May and June have kept climbing until the June amount was almost three times as great as the

NEW SUNDAY SCHOOLS

There was plenty in June to make Barium officials feel good because of other Sunday Schools which have either adopted a plan of regular giving, or made changes in their former programs which will mean more to the Orphanage.

Greenville Sunday School in Albemarle Presbytery increased it's monthly appropriation from $1.00 to $4.00. Forest City and Saluda, both in Kings Mountain Presbytery have adopted the plan of an offering per month. Buffalo (L) in Orange Presbytery definitely notified authorities here that the Sunday School is now giving a contribution per month instead of the old method of a gift each fifth Sunday. St. Andrews, also in Orange Presbytery, has decided to give the fifth Sunday Offerings and made their first response on June 30th. Baker's Sunday School, down in Wilmington Presbytery, has adopted the offering per month plan, and has sent the first gift.

None of the above fine pieces of news made Barium officials mad; the reaction was decidedly in the opposite. It is hoped that still others will make officials here glad during the month of July. WHAT OBOUT IT?

A Mascot Who Is Mascot of Angels Now

A pall of sadness was cast over the Barium campus Sunday night, June 16th, when it was learned that little Jimmy Barkley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Barkley of Troutman, had been claimed by death. Little Jimmy was chosen by the Class of 1935 as their mascot, but was unable to serve in that capacity because he became ill two days before the commencement program in April. He steadily grew worse until hope for his life was abandoned a few days before the end came on June 16th. He was known by most of the children here, for he frequently visited the Barium campus with his father and mother. Deep sympathy is extended to the bereaved parents who have lost their only child, a little tot who had intertwined itself around their heartstrings as well as the heartstrings of others who knew him.

Important Notice to All Treasurers

Have you sent a gift to the Orphanage within the past six months for which you have received no receipt? If so, communicate with Ernest Milton, Treas., Barium Springs, immediately. Here's the reason: The mail clerk who had been operating on the train through Barium was arrested on June 13th for robbing the mails, and perhaps money intended for the Orphanage has gone astray in this way.

Between December and June there were six instances of tampering with the mails which came to the attention of the Orphanage authorities. Three checks and a small amount in currency were mailed to Barium but were never received, while two checks were mailed from the Orphanage in March which never reached their destinations. All checks to and from the Orphanage have all been duplicated, and no loss has been sustained on the checks.

Officials here have been aware of this existing condition for some time but for obvious reasons kept quite about it. But now that the culprit has been caught and has confessed, publicity can be given to what has been transpiring. All treasurers are asked to check back through their records and if there is any doubt whether the gift ever reached Barium, write Mr. Milton immediately so that the records at the Orphanage can be checked.

Income Distribution

Duriing the first quarter of 1935-1936, $5,702.26 has been received at the Orphanage from the Synod of North Carolina. Sunday School responses have been responsible for the largest portion of this for the total from this source is $2,892.15. Church budget apportionments have accounted for $1,643.78, the Auxiliaries have contributed $1,157.24 to the support fund, and $9.00 has been forwarded to the Orphanage from Young People's Societies.

For every one of the three months which have passed so far, each source of income has shown an increase over the preceding month. The combined totals for all the organizations have shown successive increases and this will also be true in July if the reports run true to form.

The record to date follows:

Month	Ch.	S. S.	Aux.
April	$ 99.33	$ 484.89	$ 176.17
May	717.68	1094.78	483.23
June	826.86	1312.48	497.84
Totals	$1643.87	$2892.15	$1157.24

Alumni News

A very interesting family to visit the Orphanage last month was the Martin family, who returned to the campus for the first time since their departure from the institution in 1914—21 years ago. They did not recognize the place as being the Orphanage at which they were enrolled at one time.

Two sisters and two brothers made up the quartet of old-time residers. They were Mrs. Frank S. Dysart, formerly Miss Emily Martin, who now resides at Marion; Mrs. O. C. Alley, formerly Miss Margaret Martin, who lives at Mayodan; Lee Martin, who calls Bond, Oregon, his home nowadays, and Eugene Martin who lives in Winston-Salem. Mrs. Dysart was a resident of the Orphanage for eight years, the other three being here for six years.

Billy Kerr, who left Barium in 1931, is now with the Marines. Mail will reach him % Marine

"INSTEAD OF FLOWERS" IS TITLE OF INTERESTING ARTICLE RECENTLY WRITTEN BY DR. WALTER LINGLE

He Suggested That Money Be Sent to Orphanages or Other Worthy Causes in Lieu of Spending It for Flowers for Funerals

Some time ago death came into the home of a highly honored and wealthy Jewish family with whom I have some acquaintance. The morning paper which announced the death carried a request from the family that friends should not send flowers, but that instead, if they wished to express their friendship for the dead and their sympathy for the living, they should send contributions to a hospital or orphanage in which the departed one was interested.

The other day I picked up in a Presbyterian church a leaflet sent out by our Presbyterian Orphanage at Barium Springs, North Carolina, suggesting that instead of sending flowers to funerals, friends should send contributions to the orphanage in memory of the loved one, and that the orphanage would notify the family of the one who had gone on before that this contribution had been made as a memorial in lieu of flowers.

These suggestions, coming from two such different sources, have much to commend them. Flowers are precious while they last, but they fade and perish so quickly. Again and again the Bible uses flowers to illustrate the swiftness with which all that is human perishes. As an illustration take this passage from the first Epistle of Peter: "All flesh is as grass, and all the glory of man as the flower of grass. The grass withereth, and the flower thereof falleth away—but the Word of the Lord endureth forever." When we wish to do something to honor the memory of a friend, it may not be possible to do anything that is for the moment more precious than sending flowers, but it is certainly possible to do something that is more abiding.

In a recent article in the "Reader's Digest" on the high cost of dying it is estimated that in America alone sixty millions of dollars are spent annually in flowers for funerals. That is a very large sum. Of course, there are times when love must not stop to calculate. But the expenditure of that immense sum does raise several questions. We all feel that it is proper that there should be some flowers at funerals, but at the same time we all no doubt feel that often there is too great a profusion of flowers. Sometimes there are so many that nobody knows what to do with them. At times there are so many that those sent by any one individual lose their significance. Often there are so many that members of the family never know who sent this or that wreath. Some friend at the door gathers up the cards which come with the flowers and turn these over to the family, and that is all the family knows.

When we see it stated that sixty million dollars are spent annually in these flowers, which are today and tomorrow perish, we instinctively wonder whether the greater part of this money might not be used in a way that would honor the dead even more than flowers and at the same time mean more to the living.

Two incidents quoted above suggest a beautiful way. They suggest that we should invest this money in living children instead of investing it in dying flowers. Think over that for a moment and ask yourself this question. If it were your funeral and some friend wished to expend anywhere from five to fifty dollars to honor your memory and to express his love and sympathy, would you rather that he invest it in flowers or in orphan children? I suppose that it would not be difficult for most of us to answer that question instantaneously, especially after we had just attended a funeral where there was an extravagant profusion of flowers. I suspect that we would prefer that our family or some intimate friend should provide a modest spray or wreath and that all others who wanted to pay their respect or express their affection should send to an orphanage or hospital the contributions which they would have spent in flowers.

Jesus tells us not to lay up for ourselves treasures on earth where moth and rust corrupt and thieves break through and steal, but to lay up for ourselves treasures in Heaven where moth and rust do not corrupt and where thieves do not break through and steal. Time does its work quickly on all things that are human. Of all material things that perish, perhaps flowers perish most quickly. Jesus wants us to do something that is worth while, something that will abide. He accordingly urges us to lay up treasures in Heaven.

Just how can a mere mortal man proceed to lay up treasures in Heaven? I know of only one way and that is by making investments in something that is going to Heaven. So for as we know, immortal souls are the only things which pass from earth to Heaven.

News From Some Cottages

JENNIE GILMER

Hello Friends,

Here we are again, trying to tell you the latest and most interesting news of the campus. The peaches and apples are getting ripe now and they are bringing them around to the cottages. We all enjoy them very much.

The farm boys have finished hauling in the hay and are getting ready to thresh wheat. Wheat threshing is a pretty big job for the farm but they will finish up in about two weeks. We are expecting a large harvest this year.

Some of our boys have already gone on their vacations and others are planning to leave soon. We hope they enjoy their vacations.

We are still playing a good bit of baseball. We had a game with Troutman, the score being 22-5 in our favor. Statesville beat us 16-15 in a game last week. Many of the boys go in swimming now. That is about the best place to go to keep cool. We have plenty of water now that they have put in the new pump behind the Baby Cottage.

Two of our boys, Fred Edwards and Ben Morrow, attended the Young People's Conference at Davidson.

Mr. Calhoun, the principal of our school, who is spending his vacation at his home in Laurinburg spent a few days with us a little while back.

This is all of the news for this time so we will sign off.

HOWARD

Hello Friends of The Barium Messenger,

How are you all enjoying these hot days? We are enjoying them fine because we get to go in swimming. Most everyone here knows how to swim or dive.

Five of our girls have gone on their vacation, one has returned, and we are expecting some more to go pretty soon.

We certainly do enjoy the apples and peaches these hot days.

We have been having a nice time playing with June Bugs. The other day Mable Shoaf had a June Bug on her finger and she said "Look, my June Bug is tame," just then it flew away and she said "No, he's not tame, either!"

One pair of our twins, Agnes and Grace Coppedge, went over to Rumple Hall to live. Sara Parcell, Ruth Cole and Emma Eudy came over here from Annie Louise.

We thank Mr. Sams for inviting us to the movies last week.

We have been having beans to string these days.

Tuesday morning Bertha McKee left for Clarkton, N. C. to spend her vacation. We hope she will have a good time.

Bessie Kennedy expects to go on her vacation in a few days. Both of these girls stay at the Infirmary.

Good-bye until next month.

LEES COTTAGE

Hello Friends,

We hope you are enjoying vacation as much as we are.

We are busy on the truck farm and other work, but there is always time after work for a nice swim and in the evenings after supper we play baseball.

The following boys are away visiting relatives; David Flowers, Ben T. Lewis, Ed Cole, Neil McKee and Donald Bolton. A number of others plan to go soon. Some will not have a chance to go away but then Barium is a good place in which to spend the summer.

We are having plenty of apples and peaches.

It is very hot and dry here and we are hoping to have rain soon.

We have been picking blackberries and enjoying pies made of them.

Most of us work at the Dairy and we have to work on the straw stackwhile the farmers are threshing wheat.

It is very hot these days and we enjoy going in swimming and playing baseball after supper.

We thank Mr. Sams for the picture shows to which he has invited us this summer and hope we can do something nice for him sometime.

The orchard boys whitewashed our barn for us and looks much better now. The orchard boys also bring around fruit such as apples and peaches. They are very good.

We have a new boy at our cottage. He is Ed Monroe. We are glad to have him with us and hope

SYNOD'S COTTAGE

Dear Frinds,

We have been playing baseball and going in swimming very much lately.

"INSTEAD OF FLOWERS"

When one invests money in little children he is taking the surest way of laying up treasures in Heaven. You will recall that Jesus in speaking of them says, "For of such is the Kingdom of Heaven."

It would be a wonderful experience after we get to Heaven if some one were to approach us and remind us that it was offerings of friends made in affectionate remembrance of us that ministered to him as an orphan child and made the more abundant life possible for him. It would be just as wonderful if some one would remind us that the contributions we sent to an orphanage in memory of some friend supported him as an orphan child and made it possible for him to preach the Gospel of everlasting life to others.

James, whom Paul calls the Lord's brother, gives in his epistle the best definition of the way in which one's religion should express itself that is to be found in the Bible. He says (1.27: "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." Put a little differently, our Christianity should express itself first of all in a life of personal purity and holiness. Our lives should be unspotted from the world. In the second place, it should express itself in a ministry of love and service to God's dependent children, especially to orphans and widows. Those who help these little ones are doing a very Christ-like thing. Jesus loved children infinitely more. So we may be sure that he approves of all that we do to help His children. We cannot be so sure that He approves of these vast expenditures in flowers which are cut only to wither and perish in an incredibly short time.

I am aware that this is a very tender subject that I am discussing and that we are on holy ground. Most of us have stood on this holy ground more than once. When death comes into the home we cannot always stop to calculate. There is such a thing as uncalculating love. Perhaps we need to think more fully and more clearly over some of these subjects connected with death and funerals before death enters the home. Many abuses and extravagances have sprung up in connection with funerals. There are costly caskets, vaults, hearses, automobiles, cemetery lots, and a dozen other things which impose financial burdens upon many families which are too heavy for them to bear. Years are sometimes spent by the family in toil endeavoring to pay the debts which were incurred by these extravagances.

If loved ones can look down from gloryland and see what is happening to those left behind, and perhaps they can, it must almost break their hearts to see the loved ones left behind spending months and even years of toil to pay the debts incurred trying to do honor to the body from which the soul had fled.

Perhaps we need to adjust our thinking along this line. At times we seem to think that we are laying our loved ones away in the grave. We need to hear some angel voice saying to us what the angel said to the woman who went to the tomb to seek Jesus: "Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth who was crucified. He is risen. He is not here." We need to come back to the faith of the Westminster divines who wrote our Shorter Catechism and in it said: "The souls of believers are at their death made perfect in holiness and do immediately pass into glory." If we could only believe and realize that the souls of our loved ones are already in the Father's House and already made perfect in holiness, while we mourn over their bodies, it would transform our whole thinking about funerals and about death.

One of the most beautiful pictures in my memory is the picture of one of God's saints in the hour of trial. It remains vivid after many years. Dr. Thomas E. Peck was for many years professor of Church History and Theology in Union Theological Seminary while it was still at Hampden-Sydney. He and his wife came nearer being real saints than any other two persons I ever saw. They were about seventy when I first learned to know them. After a lingering illness he was taken first. I shall never forget the funeral. During the singing of the hymns I heard a contralto voice that I had never heard before. I looked and I saw the face of Mrs. Peck. Her veil was pushed back and her face was lighted as with a halo from Heaven. It was her voice that I had heard as she joined in singing those great hymns of faith and hope. As she stood at the grave I noted that same heavenly halo that lighted up what was to me the most saintly face I ever saw. When some one asked her how she could go through the services with such composure and resignation, she replied that her husband had suffered long and now that he was released from those sufferings and was with the Savior in the Father's House, she did not feel that she should weep, but that rather she should rejoice with him. If all who profess to be Christains had a faith like that, we would think of death and funerals very differently. In fact if we had a faith like that, the world itself would be vastly different. We would do well to pray with the apostles: "Lord, increase our faith."

No Boasting About June Receipts

Albemarle Presbytery evidently did not relish Concord's leadership in the table of receipts at the conclusion of May, while Albemarle was dropping back to third position, so the latter Presbytery did an about-face and a leap back to top berth during June. Neither was Winston-Salem Presbytery satisfied with it's ranking of seventh last month for they jumped a long way forward to second place.

While these two Presbyteries were performing these antics, Concord slid down to fourth place, as compared with their leadership last month. Ordinarily Concord would have stopped at third position, but Kings Mountain Presbytery had something to say about this. Kings Mountain is in third place at the close of June.

Orange Presbytery also did a tumble in June, falling from second to the fifth position, Mecklenburg slipped from fifth to sixth, Wilmington also dropped back one notch to seventh place because of Winston-Salem's shooting forward, while Granville and Fayetteville Presbyteries remained in eighth and ninth places, respectively.

The entire Synod of North Carolina has contributed 7.2 cents per member in the first quarter of 1935-1936, which is an increase of four-tenths of a cent over the record of a year ago. This increase is appreciated, and represents a sum of over $300.00. However, that 7.2 cents per member for the first three months is far from the 30 cents per church member which is needed.

Albemarle, Winston-Salem, Kings Mountain and Concord Presbyteries were in the one-two-three-four positions a year ago, and this is identical to the rank for the current fiscal period. Orange is fifth now, it was eighth on June 30, 1934; Mecklenburg is sixth today as compared to seventh last year; Wilmington ranks seventh now, while it was fifth for the first quarter of 1934-1935; Granville is eighth today, but was at the bottom last year, while Fayetteville takes the last berth now as compared with it's rank of sixth a year ago.

JOS. B. JOHNSTON HAS

at the Orphanage, and many of these he has met in the past 13 years as they returned to their old home here. In his 13 years, 715 children have been discharged, and have gone out to take their places in life's scheme of things.

Capacity Now 360

While there were only 292 children at Barium on July 1st, the Orphanage has a capacity of 360 boys and girls and at one time during the past 13 years a peak of 377 was reached. However, retrenchments were necessary a few years ago, being precipitated by the drastic decrease in income, though the enrollment has never dropped in proportion to the decrease in operating receipts. By September there will probably be a little over 300 children at the Orphanage, around which number the enrollment has hovered for the past three or four years.

At the time Mr. Johnston came to the Orphanage from Lincolnton the Lottie Walker Building (also known as the Woman's building) was nearing completion and the remodeling of Rumple Hall was also in it's final stages. The latter was enlarged to give ample dining room space and also living for the girls who worked in the dining room.

Around $200,000 Spent on Buildings

In the past 13 years approximately $200,000.00 has been spent in the construction of buildings, the remodeling of others and other physical improvements. The laundry and sewing room was built and completely furnished by C. W. Johnston. Gifts from the latter, Mr. P Pearsall and the Jennie Gilmer legacy made possible the building which now houses the high school boys and which is known as the Jennie Gilmer Cottage.

The Baby Cottage was constructed through a gift made by Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Stowe. W. N. Reynolds and Mrs. Cameron Morrison gave the grammer school building, in which there is the auditorium. Several legacies were used to construct the home in which the superintendent now lives, the manse was made possible through the Burwell legacy, and J. C. Crowell gave a swimming pool. A printing office and shoe shop were established in Alexander Cottage by Jas. L. Sloan, and he and the Richardson family together contributed a sufficient sum for the athletic field. Annie Louise, Lee's, Synod and Howard Cottages have all been completely remodeled in in this period of tiime.

Orchards Enlarged

The acreage was 400 in July, 1922, but this has increased to 1,200 in the past 13 years. The orchards were supplying only a small portion of the necessary fruit in 1922, with a limited number of trees of various kinds, but now the acreage of these has been increased and the needs of the institution are almost entirely provided for from the local orchards. In 1922 there was one well at Barium which was supplying about 30 gallons per minute, which was ample in those days, but there are now three wells at the institution with a combined capacity of something over 90 gallons per minute. Baths twice a week were at one time a rite at the institution, but in many cases they occur daily now, especially through the athletic season.

There was no systematic program to keep the children occupied when Mr. Johnston came to Barium. It was largely up to to the boys and girls to provide for their own amusement, but nowadays the children are busy almost every minute of the day. When they are not working, or sleeping, or eating, or going to school, or studying, they are playing football, basketball, developing as track performers, cavorting about in the swimming pool, playing baseball, or participating in some form of organized athletics. Keeping them busy has helped to solve many of the problems of discipline that abounded here years ago.

Unusual Health Record

In the 13 years of Mr. Johnston's tenure of office there have been nine deaths at the institution and eight of these occurred in the first four years of his administration. Since 1926 there has been only one death at Barium and that was June, 1933. Four of these deaths were caused by tuberculosis; one was from concussion of the brain when a child fell from a wagon and struck his head on the concrete; one was from tetanous; one was caused by peritonitis following an appendix operation; one was from septacemia following a mastoid operation and the one in 1933 was from osteomelytis which was followed by septacemia poisoning. The death rate for the 1009 children under his care has been a fraction over one per cent in the past 13 years, and almost a negligible per cent in the past nine years.

This remarkable health record is due to the clinics which have been established at the Orphanage during Mr. Johnston's administration. There is an annual rigid physical examination of every child here; a dental clinic of two or three weeks duration; an eye, ear, nose and throat clinic, and a tubercular clinic. The treatment of diseases has developed into a weekly clinic, with the number of bed patients reduced to a minimum.

Today there are no active cases of tuberculosis at the Orphanage for the annual clinic is held for the purpose of detecting this. If a child is found to be an active tubercular patient, he or she is promptly sent to the State Sanatorium. Certainly there would be no deaths from tuberculosis at the Orphanage today.

A Picture And A Dream

Thus, in brief, is a picture of the changes that have taken place in thirteen years. The fourteenth year has begun. The past several years have been trying and difficult ones as the superintendent has had to provide for this big family at Barium on a greatly reduced income. He had a vision of an Orphanage of much larger capacity and thus of greater usefulness to the Synod. That has necessarily been relegated to a temporary background, but it is a dream and an ideal that has not been forgotten.

A marriage of interest to Barium people was that of Lucile Long to William Brown Wallace which took place on April 20th. Both of them live in Charlotte. Mrs. Wallace was graduated from Barium in the Class of 1932, and is among those alumni who return most frequently to the Orphanage at Home-Comings and Commencements.

Lily Jackins has completed her comptometer course in Charlotte, and is now working in Columbia, S. C.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS SHOW

total contributions received in April. The latter month shows only $484.89, but this much-smaller-than-usual total was probably due to the fact that the fourth Sunday gifts had not reached Barium before the books were closed on the 30th of April.

May's total of Sunday School Offerings was $1,094.78, while that of June climbed up to the impressive aggregate of $1,312.48. Both of these amounts were better than the totals of the corresponding months of 1934-1935, though April's contributions were less than those of April, 1934. However, for the first quarter the Sunday Schools have contributed $254.40 more than in the first quarter of the preceding year.

At the present rate, the Sunday Schools will show an increase of over $1,700.00 in their regular gifts for the year, and it is believed here that the increase over 1934-1935 is going to be even more than that. For 1934-1935, the Sunday Schools gave a sum which was $2,127.61 greater than in 1933-1934 and probably the 1935-1936 final aggregate will be over $2,000.00 greater than that for the previous year.

On the basis of ten cents per meal per child, the gifts from the Sunday School members would have served 28,922 meals in the first quarter—2,544 more than in the first quarter of last year. In 1934-1935, 155,940 meals were served by the Sunday Schools, which was over half of the 330,000 served that year. No doubt the Sunday Schools will make possible approximately 200,000 of the 330,000 meals during the present fiscal period.

July, 1934, was a good month for the Sunday Schools. The first quarter closes on June 30th, and perhaps this month will also be an unusually good one, as many Sunday Schools send their gifts at the end of each quarter.

The record of Sunday School meals for all of last year and for the first three months to date is as follows:

Months	1934-35	1935-36

ANNIE LOUISE

Hello Folks,

We failed to write to you last month but we will try to make up for it now.

Miss McGoogan is back from her vacation and we certainly are glad. Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McGoogan sent each one of us a drinking cup and we are drinking lots of water.

We have been to the movies recently and saw "People Will Talk". We certainly enjoyed it and appreciate Mr. Sams thinking of us.

Five of our girls have moved to other cottages and we have five new ones. We are glad to have the new ones and hope that the ones that left will like their new home.

A few of our girls have already been on their vacations and are back but there are still a few away.

Miss McGoogan and Mrs. McGirt took us and the babies to the football field and we had a picnic supper which we enjoyed very much and afterward we played games.

We are having apples and peaches which we enjoy very much. We are going in swimming everyday and having a good time.

This Englesh

We'll begin with box; the plural is boxes,
But the plural of ox should be oxen, not oxes.
One fowl is a goose, but two are called geese,
Yet the plural of moose should never be meese.
You may find a lone mouse, or a whole nest of mice,
But the plural of house is houses, not hice.
If plural of man is always called men,
Why shouldn't the plural of pan be called pen?
The cow in the plural may be called cows or kine;
But a bow, if repeated, is never called bine;
And the plural of vow is vows, never vine.
If I speak of a foot, and you show me two feet,
And I give you a boot, would a pair be called beet?
If one is a tooth and a whole set are teeth,
Why shouldn't the plural of booth be called beeth?
If the singular's this and plural is these.
Should the plural of kiss ever be written keese?
Then one may be that, and the two would be those.
Yet hat in the plural would never be hose.
And the plural of cat is cats, and not cose.
We speak of brother, and also of brethren,
But though we say mother, we never say methren.
Then the masculine pronouns are he, his and him.
But imagine the feminine, she, shis and shim!
So the English, I think you all will agree,
Is the funniest language you ever did see.

An English manufacturer of motor car tires was the guest of a gathering of commercial men. Reponding to a toast, he said:

"I have no desire or intention to inflict upon you a long speech, for it is well known in our trade that the longer the spoke the bigger the tire."

The village parson met one of his flock, a surly old farmer.

"I didn't see you in church last Sunday," said the parson.

"Too wet," replied the farmer, laconically.

"But it's always dry inside," protested the parson.

"That's another reason," replied the farmer.

—P. O. H.—

"I understand that you called on the complainant. Is that so?" demanded a brow-beating lawyer of a man he was cross-examining in an English court.

"Yes," replied the witness.

"What did he say?"

Counsel for the other side eagerly objected that evidence as to a conversation was not admissible, and half an hour's argument ensued. Then the magistrates retired to consider the point, announcing on their return some time later that they deemed the question a proper one.

"Well, what did the plantiff say?" repeated the cross-examining barrister.

"He weren't at home, sir," was the answer.—Wall Street Journal.

—P. O. H.—

Teacher (after recess): "Percy, why are you crying?"

Percy: "Harold kicked me in the stomach."

Teacher: "Harold, did you mean to kick Percy in the stomach?"

Harold: "Naw. He turned around just when I kicked."
